Item 4 Advisory Business

Miller/Howard Investments, Inc. (“Miller/Howard”) is an SEC-registered investment adviser with its principal place of business located in New York. Miller/Howard began conducting business in 1986.

Listed below are the firm’s principal shareholders (i.e., those individuals and/or entities controlling 25% or more of this company):

- Lowell Glaser Miller, President, CIO

We are a boutique investment management firm with over two decades of experience managing portfolios for major institutions, mutual funds, and individuals in disciplined investment strategies. We combine rigorous financial analysis with environmental, social, and governance (“ESG”) evaluation for some portfolios. For select portfolios, our portfolio team identifies financially attractive opportunities, and our social research team develops an ESG profile for potential candidates. We also apply a set of negative screens for potential candidates and eliminate companies that do not meet our ESG criteria. Miller/Howard is an active participant in shareholder advocacy and direct dialogue with companies regarding their positions on ESG issues.

We design and manage the following portfolios with the goals of strong current income, growth of income, and capital appreciation.

UTILITIES + INFRASTRUCTURE

This portfolio seeks to participate in both the stability and dynamic growth of essential services and infrastructure worldwide. The projected stability arises from the fact that utilities and infrastructure are in constant demand and continuously generating revenues. The growth is due to expanding populations and demographic shifts that drive more usage. In the developing world, growth arises as economies push toward a developed-world standard of living.

INCOME-EQUITY STRATEGY

This is a diversified, dividend-growth equity portfolio that seeks high current dividend income plus growth of income and principal. Stocks are primarily US based, multi-cap companies from across the broad equity market. In the portfolio, 25% can be invested in foreign stocks that trade on US exchanges (ADRs) and up to 25% can be exchange-traded master limited partnerships (“MLPs”).<sup>1</sup>

INCOME-EQUITY STRATEGY (No MLPs)

This is a diversified, dividend-growth equity portfolio that seeks high current income plus growth of income and principal. Stocks are primarily US-based, multi-cap companies from across the broad equity market. The investment philosophy, objective, and strategy behind this portfolio are the same as the Income-Equity Strategy. The only difference in this portfolio is that it does not invest in MLPs and therefore does not generate K-1 tax reports.

<sup>1</sup> One can think of MLPs as “utilities without walls” — that is, they are utility-like companies with fewer restraints on their ability to grow than conventional utilities. They evolved as a tax-efficient way for large energy companies to operate their infrastructure assets. MLPs have the potential to generate stable and consistent cash flow from long-term contracts for the transportation, processing, and storage of energy products, thus providing “quality income.”

HIGH-YIELD EQUITY

This is a tax-advantaged, high-yield equity portfolio invested in companies that we expect will continue to pay, and potentially raise, their dividends. The portfolio is diversified by industry, quality, and financial strength without investing in MLPs.

MLP STRATEGY

This is a high-yielding portfolio (with tax-deferred income) composed of US exchange-traded MLPs (what we have identified as high-quality pipelines and energy facilities), with high current income and strong prospects for growth of distributions.

MLP FOCUS

This is a concentrated portfolio primarily invested in large-cap midstream pipeline companies that can provide investors with some of the benefits of direct MLP ownership.

DISTRIBUTION / MERGING UTILITIES

This portfolio is a specialty strategy structured to benefit from consolidation and convergence in the utility industry. We focus on investments in public securities of small and mid-capitalization utility companies that we believe are both undervalued and potentially subject to acquisition.

RISING DIVIDEND PLUS

This strategy primarily invests in established and seasoned mid- and large-capitalization companies. We have identified these companies as financially strong with the potential for steadily rising earnings and dividends. The portfolio aims to participate in the long-term growth of the economy and the markets by investing in stocks that we see as having a high probability of raising dividends in the future.

DRILL BIT TO BURNER TIP®

An equity portfolio that leverages more than two decades of our expertise and experience investing in the North American energy commercial value chain. The portfolio encompasses companies exposed to all stages of the North American energy revolution such as producers, transporters, processors, distributors, enablers, as well as energy-intensive industrial companies poised to benefit from newly abundant supplies. Portfolio holdings include those companies tasked with improving environmental health, safety and efficiency of US shale oil & gas drilling, as well as those reaping economic and environmental benefits by shifting consumption to cleaner burning natural gas. The result is a single-themed, multi-faceted strategy designed to capture the benefits of the American economy's ongoing return to energy self-sufficiency.

DRILL BIT TO BURNER TIP® (No K-1s)

A version of our Drill Bit to Burner Tip® strategy that includes only securities or some MLPs that do not have to file K-1 reports.

We manage these advisory accounts on a discretionary basis. Clients work with us (or with firms that introduce the client to us) to identify one or more portfolios that are suitable for the client's investment situation, financial goals, and risk tolerance. Once a client has selected a portfolio, that portfolio is managed based on the portfolio's goal, rather than on each client's individual needs. Clients may have the opportunity to place reasonable restrictions on the types of investments to be held in their accounts. We do not pool clients' assets, and clients retain individual ownership of all securities.

Because some types of investments involve certain additional degrees of risk, they will only be implemented/recommended when consistent with the client's stated investment objectives, tolerance for risk, liquidity, and suitability.

To ensure that our initial determination of an appropriate portfolio remains suitable and that the account continues to be managed in a manner consistent with the client's financial circumstances, our firm and/or the firms that introduce the client to us will:

1. Send quarterly written reminders to each client requesting any updated information regarding changes in the client's financial situation and investment objectives.
2. Be reasonably available to consult with the client.

We invest in infrastructure, companies that provide essential services, MLPs, and stocks from all sectors with high current dividend yield and for which we forecast strong dividend growth. As appropriate, we may also invest in mutual fund shares, US government securities, and options contracts on securities. Our investment recommendations are not limited to any specific product or service offered by a broker dealer or insurance company.

From time to time, we purchase initial public offerings ("IPOs") for advisory clients. In the past, we purchased IPOs for institutional clients only in the utilities strategy or as sub-advisor to a mutual fund or private pooled investment. We will only purchase an IPO for an advisory client after determining that the IPO is suitable for the strategy. If it is found suitable, shares purchased will be allocated on a pro rata basis as accurately as is practicable among all the accounts for which the security has been found to be suitable.

AMOUNT OF MANAGED ASSETS

As of December 31, 2013, Miller/Howard actively managed approximately $6.7 billion of clients' assets on a discretionary basis.

Item 5 Fees and Compensation

Annual management fees are based on a percentage of assets under management for our separate account business and are generally as follows:

- 1.00% for the first $2 million
- 0.75% for the next $2 million
- 0.60% for the next $21 million
- 0.50% thereafter

Fees are generally payable quarterly in advance, and are based on the previous quarter-end market value.

Our firm directly debits advisory fees from client accounts through the custodian. Our firm will instruct the client's custodian to deduct our management fees from the client's account. As part of this billing process, the client's custodian is advised of the amount of the fee to be deducted from that client's account. On at least a quarterly basis, the custodian is required to send to the client a statement showing all transactions within the account during the reporting period.

Our minimum account size is $250,000, except for special arrangements. We may reduce the minimum account size and fees for our services for brokerage networks with managed account programs and for individuals.

We also receive fees as a sub-advisor to several mutual funds. Our management fees vary for each fund and are in a range from 0.375% to 0.60%.

We also currently provide investment advice on a discretionary basis to a UCITS (Undertakings for Collective Investments in Transferable Securities) fund ("UCITS") registered in Luxembourg. For the UCITS, we receive a fee at an annual rate of between 1.2% and 2.0% of net assets under management. In addition, we are entitled to a performance fee based on the excess return of the net assets of the UCITS against the last seven year arithmetic mean ("hurdle rate") of its benchmark index. The performance fee is equal to 20% of the excess return and is charged to the UCITS's assets.

Excess return is measured as asset growth, which is determined on the basis of share price movements, the net UCITS assets related to the share value and the hurdle rate. The performance fee is calculated daily and limited to the amount by which the share price exceeds the hurdle rate. Any underperformance in relation to the hurdle rate at the end of a calculation period needs to be fully recovered in the following calculation period, otherwise the performance fee is zero.

Should there be a performance fee accrual at the time of a net redemption of shares, and the redemption does not occur at the last business day of a performance fee calculation period, the portion of performance fees corresponding to such redemption will be booked as a payable amount to Miller/Howard ("locked-in performance fee"). The payment of the locked-in performance fee and the amount accrued at the end of a calculation period will be paid to Miller/Howard at the beginning of a new calculation period.

With respect to any performance-based fees, Miller/Howard will be in compliance with Rule 205-3 under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (“Advisers Act”) and with applicable no-action positions taken by the SEC.

Limited Negotiability of Advisory Fees: In certain circumstances, such as when the client is a manager-of-managers or when clients are part of a brokerage network managed account program, the annual fee and whether fees are paid in advance or arrears may be negotiated. With respect to arrears billing, accounts billed in arrears are calculated on an average of the month-end values of the previous quarter, unless we agree otherwise. There may be other circumstances when the fee, method of payments, and refund policy for termination may be negotiable. These include the complexity of the client, assets to be placed under management, anticipated future additional assets, related accounts, portfolio style, account composition, and reports, among other factors. The specific annual-fee schedule is identified in the contract between the adviser and each client, or in the case of brokerage network managed accounts, the fee is identified by the contract between the sponsoring broker and the client.

We may group certain related client accounts for the purposes of achieving the minimum account size requirements and determining the annualized fee.

Discounts, not generally available to our advisory clients, may be offered to associated persons of our firm and their family members and friends.

Termination of the Advisory Relationship: Contracts may be terminated at any time for any reason or no reason. In the event that services are terminated, a refund will be issued on a pro rata basis, based on the termination day plus a 30-day notification period. Similarly, if an account is billed in arrears, all earned, unpaid fees will be due and payable as of the termination date plus a 30-day notification period.

Fund Fees: Miller/Howard serves as sub-investment adviser for several mutual funds. As such, Miller/Howard is paid a sub-investment advisory fee. Such fee is typically paid out of the investment advisory fee earned by the investment advisor of the fund. In addition, the mutual funds and the UCITS (collectively “funds”) will incur other fund expenses and a possible distribution fee. These fees and expenses are described in each fund’s prospectus. If the fund also imposes sales charges, a client may pay an initial or deferred sales charge, as well as a distribution fee; however, Miller/Howard does not earn any fees from the imposition of any sales charges or distribution fees (except for distribution fees from the UCITS). Clients should review all fees charged by these funds to fully understand the total amount of fees to be paid by the client and to thereby evaluate the advisory services being provided.

Wrap Fee Programs and Separately Managed Account Fees: Clients participating in separately managed account programs may be charged various program fees in addition to the advisory fee charged by our firm. Such fees may include the investment advisory fees of the independent advisers, which may be charged as part of a wrap fee arrangement. In a wrap fee arrangement, clients pay a single fee for advisory, brokerage, and custodial services. Clients’ portfolio transactions may be executed without commission charge in a wrap fee arrangement. In evaluating such an arrangement, the client should also consider that, depending upon the level of the wrap fee charged by the broker-dealer, the amount of portfolio activity in the client's account, and other factors, the wrap fee may or may not exceed the aggregate cost of such services if they were to be provided separately.

Additional Fees and Expenses: In addition to our advisory fees, clients are also responsible for the fees and expenses charged by custodians and imposed by broker-dealers, including, but not limited to, any transaction charges imposed by a broker-dealer with which an independent investment manager effects transactions for the client's account(s). Please refer to the "Brokerage Practices" section (Item 12) of this Form ADV for additional information.

Advisory Fees in General: Clients should note that similar advisory services may (or may not) be available from other registered (or unregistered) investment advisers for similar or lower fees.

Limited Prepayment of Fees: Under no circumstances do we require or solicit payment of fees in excess of $1,200 more than six months in advance of services rendered.

Index Licensing Fees: Miller/Howard receives compensation in connection with licensing the Miller/Howard MLP Fundamental Index ("Index") to third parties. Such fees are based on the agreement with the licensee.

Item 6 Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Miller/Howard receives performance-based fees from the UCITS it manages. This performance-based fee, as noted above in “Fees and Compensation,” is 20% annually of the excess return versus a benchmark return.

Miller/Howard faces a conflict of interest to the extent that it manages an account for which it receives a performance-based fee at the same time as it manages one or more accounts for which it does not receive a performance-based fee or receives a different level of performance-based fee. A performance-based fee arrangement generally entitles an investment adviser to additional compensation if the performance of an account bearing the performance-based fee exceeds an established benchmark. Miller/Howard has the potential to receive higher compensation from an account for which it is paid a performance-based fee than for an account that is not charged a performance-based fee or is charged a lower performance-based fee. Miller/Howard may have an incentive to favor accounts or take increased investment risk on behalf of accounts for which it receives a performance-based fee or a larger performance-based fee because it could receive greater compensation from such accounts. For example, Miller/Howard may have an incentive to trade in non-performance-based fee accounts to benefit the performance-based fee account. Miller/Howard has put into place policies and procedures to address these conflicts of interest, including policies designed to ensure allocation of trades and securities to client accounts on a fair and equitable basis and brokerage commission policies. These policies and procedures are described in more detail below under “Brokerage Practices.”

Item 7 Types of Clients

We provide advisory services to the following types of clients:

- Individuals (who do not qualify as high net worth)
- High-net-worth individuals
- Investment companies (including mutual funds)
- Pension and profit sharing plans
- Other pooled investment vehicles (e.g., UCITS)
- Charitable organizations
- Corporations or other businesses not listed above
- State or municipal government entities
- Taft-Hartley

Item 8 Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss

We use the following methods of analysis in formulating our investment advice and/or managing client assets:

Charting. In this type of technical analysis, we review charts of market and security activity in an attempt to identify when the market is moving up or down and to predict how long the trend may last and when that trend might reverse.

Fundamental analysis. We attempt to measure the intrinsic value of a security by looking at economic and financial factors (including the overall economy, industry conditions, and the financial condition and management of the company itself) to determine if the company is underpriced (indicating it may be a good time to buy) or overpriced (indicating it may be time to sell).

Fundamental analysis does not attempt to anticipate market movements. This presents a potential risk, as the price of a security can move up or down along with the overall market, regardless of the economic and financial factors considered in evaluating the stock.

Technical analysis. We analyze past market movements and apply that analysis to the present in an attempt to recognize recurring patterns of investor behavior and to potentially predict future price movement.

Technical analysis does not consider the underlying financial condition of a company. This presents a risk in that a poorly managed or financially unsound company may underperform regardless of market movement.

Risks for all forms of analysis. Our securities analysis methods rely on the assumption that the companies whose securities we purchase and sell, the rating agencies that review these securities, and other publicly available sources of information about these securities, are providing accurate and unbiased data. While we are alert to indications that data may be incorrect, there is always a risk that our analysis may be compromised by inaccurate or misleading information.

INVESTMENT STRATEGIES

We may use one or more of the following strategies in managing client accounts, provided that such strategies are appropriate to the needs of the client and consistent with the client's investment objectives, risk tolerance, and time horizons, among other considerations.

Long-term purchases. We generally purchase securities with the intent to hold them in the client's account for a year or longer. Typically, we employ this strategy when we believe the securities to be currently undervalued, and/or we want exposure to a particular asset class over time.

A risk in a long-term purchase strategy is that by holding the security for this length of time, we may not take advantage of short-term gains that could be profitable to a client. Moreover, if our predictions are incorrect, a security may decline sharply in value before we make the decision to sell.

Short-term purchases. In utilizing this strategy, occasionally we may purchase securities with the intent to sell them within a relatively short time (typically a year or less). We do this in an attempt to take advantage of conditions that we believe will shortly result in a price swing in the securities we purchase.

A short-term purchase strategy poses risks should the anticipated price swing not materialize; we are then left with the option of either having a long-term investment in a security that was designed to be a short-term purchase, or potentially taking a loss.

In addition, this strategy involves more frequent trading than does a longer-term strategy, and will likely result in increased brokerage and other transaction-related costs, as well as less favorable tax treatment of short-term capital gains.

Trading. Although we do not generally intend to do so, occasionally we may purchase securities with the intent to sell them very quickly (typically within 30 days or less) in order to take advantage of anticipated price swings.

Utilizing a trading strategy creates the potential for sudden losses if the anticipated price swing does not materialize. Moreover, under those circumstances, we are left with few options: having a long-term investment in a security that was designed to be a short-term purchase, or the potential of having to take a loss.

In addition, because this strategy involves more frequent trading than does a longer-term strategy, it will likely result in an increase in brokerage and other transaction-related costs, as well as less favorable tax treatment of short-term capital gains.

Margin transactions. We may purchase stocks for your portfolio with money borrowed from your brokerage account. This allows you to purchase more stock than you would be able to with your available cash, and allows us to purchase stock without selling other holdings. We can only do this in margin accounts. For the year ending December 31, 2013, none of our strategies had any margin transactions.

A risk in margin trading is that, in volatile markets, securities prices can fall very quickly. If the value of the securities in your account minus what you owe the broker falls below a certain level, the broker will issue a "margin call," and you will be required to sell positions in your portfolio or add more cash to the account. In some circumstances, you may lose more money than you originally invested.

Option writing. We may use options as an investment strategy. An option is a contract that gives the buyer the right, but not the obligation, to buy or sell an asset (such as a share of stock) at a specific price on or before a certain date. An option, just like a stock or bond, is a security. An option is also a derivative, because it derives its value from an underlying asset.

The two types of options are calls and puts:

- A call gives the owner the right to buy an asset at a certain price within a specific period of time. We will buy a call if we believe that the stock will increase substantially before the option expires.

- A put gives the owner the right to sell an asset at a certain price within a specific period of time. We will buy a put if we believe that the price of the stock will fall before the option expires.

We may use options in certain instances to speculate on the possibility of a sharp price swing. We may also use options to “hedge” a purchase of the underlying security; in other words, to limit the potential upside and downside of a security we have purchased for your portfolio.

We may use “covered calls” where we sell a call option on a security you own. In this case, you would receive a fee for making the security available, and the investor purchasing the option has the right to buy the security from you at an agreed-upon price.

We may use a “spreading strategy,” in which we purchase two or more option contracts (for example, a call option that you buy and a call option that you sell) for the same underlying security. This effectively puts you on both sides of the market, but with the ability to vary price, time, and other factors.

A risk of covered calls is that the option buyer does not have to exercise the option, so that if we want to sell the stock prior to the end of the option agreement, we have to buy the option back from the option buyer, for a possible loss. A risk of spreading strategies is that the ability to fully profit from a price swing is limited.

For the year ending December 31, 2013, none of our strategies had any options transactions.

Risk of Loss. Security investments are not guaranteed, and you may lose money on your investments.

Item 9 Disciplinary Information

We are required to disclose any legal or disciplinary events that are material to a client's or prospective client's evaluation of our advisory business or the integrity of our management. Our firm and our management personnel have no reportable disciplinary events to disclose.

Item 10 Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Our firm and our investment professionals are not engaged in other financial industry activities and have no other industry affiliations, except as noted herein.

We sub-advise several mutual funds and other pooled investment vehicles (“funds”). We recommend these funds to advisers who also introduce clients to us. However, we do not use our discretionary authority to invest client assets in these funds. We are not in the business of recommending funds to clients.

Miller/Howard has created an affiliate, Miller/Howard Strategic Indexes, LLC (“MHSI”). In addition, Miller/Howard has created the Miller/Howard MLP Fundamental Index (“Index”). The Index is a composite of 25 energy Master Limited Partnerships (“MLPs”) that are modified equal weighted based on certain quantitative fundamental factors of publicly traded MLPs. MHSI has contracted with the Chicago Board of Exchange to publish and calculate the Index.

Miller/Howard receives compensation in connection with licensing the Index to third parties. In addition, Miller/Howard provides investment advice to clients and accordingly receives fees from those clients. Miller/Howard, as part of providing investment advice may recommend to its clients to buy or sell securities included in the Index. Such recommendations are made independent of any changes made to or contemplated to be made to the Index.

A potential conflict exists because knowledge of impending Index changes could impact investment decisions with respect to portfolios of MLPs managed by Miller/Howard. Miller/Howard has established policies and procedures to ensure its activities as Index Sponsor are separate from and independent of its activities as an investment advisor.

In addition, the Index may be used as a basis for certain financial products, such as exchange-traded notes or other exchange-traded products (“Products”). Miller/Howard may find it in its clients’ best interests to include such Products in their portfolios managed by Miller/Howard. In such an instance, Miller/Howard may earn duplicate fees: fees from managing the client portfolio and fees from the licensing of the Index to the sponsor of the Product (which may be a percentage of the amount invested in the Product). Miller/Howard will only make such decisions when it believes that the Product is the most suitable investment for its clients under the circumstances.

At some point, Miller/Howard may assign the Index to MHSI.

Item 11 Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions, and Personal Trading

We have adopted a Code of Ethics that sets forth high ethical standards of business conduct that we require of our employees, including compliance with applicable federal securities laws.

Our firm and our personnel owe a duty of loyalty, fairness, and good faith towards our clients, and have an obligation to adhere not only to the specific provisions of the Code of Ethics but to the general principles that guide the Code.

Our Code of Ethics is designed to assure that the personal securities transactions, activities, and interests of our employees will not interfere with: (1) making decisions in the best interest of advisory clients, and (2) implementing such decisions, while at the same time allowing employees to invest for their own accounts.

To that end, our Code of Ethics includes policies and procedures for the review of quarterly securities transactions reports as well as initial and annual securities holdings reports that must be submitted by the firm's access persons. Among other things, our Code of Ethics also requires the prior approval of any acquisition of securities in a limited offering (e.g., private placement) or an initial public offering. Our code also provides for oversight, enforcement, and record keeping provisions.

Further, our Code states that firms and/or individuals associated with our firm may buy or sell, for their personal accounts, securities identical to or different from those recommended to our clients. In addition, any related person(s) may have an interest or position in one or more securities that may also be recommended to a client.

The Code imposes restrictions on the purchase or sale of securities for an employee's own account and accounts in which the employee has a beneficial interest. The Code also includes provisions for: (1) prior written approval of each employee's transactions, and (2) the delivery by each employee of a quarterly transaction report detailing each securities transaction to the Firm's Chief Compliance Officer (the "CCO") within 30 days after the end of each calendar quarter.

A copy of our Code of Ethics is available to all advisory clients and prospective clients. You may request a copy by email sent to marilyn@mhinvest.com, or by calling us at 845-679-9166. Violations of the Code are reported to the Board of Directors of the firm, and the Board may impose such sanctions as it deems appropriate, including, without limitation, disgorgement of profits, censure, suspension, or termination of employment.

Our employees and their related persons may have client accounts with our firm. These accounts are treated like all other client accounts and so will trade with client transactions where possible and when compliant with our duty to seek best execution for our clients. In these instances, participating clients will receive an average share price, and transaction costs will be shared equally and on a pro rata basis. In the instances where there is a partial fill of a particular batched order, we will allocate all purchases pro rata, with each account paying the average price. Our employee accounts will be included in the pro rata allocation.

Our firm has adopted a policy prohibiting the use of material nonpublic information. While we do not believe that we have any particular access to nonpublic information, all employees are reminded that such information may not be used in a personal or professional capacity.

As noted previously, knowledge of impending Index changes could impact investment decisions with respect to portfolios of MLPs managed by Miller/Howard. Knowledge of such Index changes could be deemed inside information. Miller/Howard has established policies and procedures to ensure its activities as Index Sponsor are separate from and independent of its activities as an investment advisor.

Item 12 Brokerage Practices

BROKERAGE DISCRETION

For Directed Brokerage, we require that clients provide us with written instructions regarding the execution of trades and the commission costs that will be charged for their transactions. These clients must include any limitations on this discretionary authority in this written authority statement. Clients may change/amend these limitations as required. Such amendments must be provided to us in writing.

In the event that a client directs us to use a particular broker-dealer, it should be understood that under those circumstances we will not have the authority to negotiate commissions or obtain volume discounts, and best execution may or may not be achieved. In addition, under these circumstances, a disparity in commission charges may exist between the commissions charged to other clients at other brokerage firms.

For separately managed account platforms where commissions are bundled with other program fees, we will generally use the sponsoring broker to execute the trades so as not to incur additional commission costs for the client. If executions are consistently below our standards for best execution, we will seek to rectify the matter with the sponsoring broker.

Our overriding objective in the selection of broker-dealers is to obtain the best combination of price and service. Best price, giving effect to brokerage commission, if any, and other transaction costs, is normally an important factor in this decision, but the selection also takes into account the quality of brokerage services, including such factors as execution capability, willingness to commit capital, financial stability, and clearance and settlement capability.

Accordingly, transactions will not always be executed at the lowest available commission. In each case, Miller/Howard will make a determination that the amount of any increased commission costs based on research or other services is reasonable relative to the value of services so provided.

SOFT DOLLARS

Section 28(e) under the US Securities Exchange Act of 1934, (the "Exchange Act"), as amended, provides a "safe harbor" to investment advisers who use commission dollars ("soft dollars") for advisory accounts to obtain investment research, brokerage, and other services that provide lawful and appropriate assistance to the investment advisor in performing decision-making responsibilities for the benefit of clients. In each brokerage arrangement involving the use of soft-dollar payments, we make a good faith determination that: (1) the products and services purchased are within the Section 28(e) definition of "research and brokerage services," and (2) that the amount of the commission paid under such arrangement is "reasonable" in relation to the value of those products or services.

Where more than one broker-dealer is believed to be capable of providing the best combination of price and execution with respect to a particular portfolio transaction, we often select a broker-dealer that furnishes research, such as:

- research reports on companies, industries, and securities;
- economic and financial data;

- financial publications that are not mass-media computer databases;
- quotation services; and
- investment research computer software and services.

For example, a broker-dealer may furnish us with quotation services and payments to investment research consultants. The selection of services, and the amount of brokerage given a particular broker-dealer, is not made pursuant to any agreement or commitment made with any of the selected broker-dealers that would bind us to compensate the broker-dealer for research provided.

We maintain an internal allocation procedure to identify those broker-dealers that have provided us with research, and the amount of research they provided. We endeavor to direct sufficient commissions to these broker-dealers to ensure the continued receipt of research.

The services that such broker-dealers furnish may be useful in servicing all our clients, and not all of such research may be useful for the account for which the particular transaction was effected. Since any particular research we obtain may be useful to many clients, we will not attempt to allocate the relative costs or benefits of research among clients in considering the reasonableness of brokerage commissions paid by each client, except in limited circumstances where appropriate.

The reasonableness of brokerage commissions is evaluated on an ongoing basis. Much of our brokerage business is through a single broker, which we believe provides the best combination of factors we deem important in the broker selection process. We also trade with major brokerage houses whose research is “bundled” with commissions, as well as broker-dealers with special execution capabilities. We recognize that the use of a single broker for much of our brokerage business (including soft dollars) may lead to the risk that our clients may not receive the best price or commission rate for trades. In addition, such use may result in an inability to take advantage of commission discounts, new research, or other services that other broker-dealers may provide. Also, a change to services provided or their cost may occur in the general brokerage marketplace that our broker-dealer may not participate in, thereby preventing us and our clients from participating in a benefit that would otherwise be available.

This relationship also may create an appearance of an affiliation, and therefore, a conflict of interest, even though a formal affiliation does not exist. However, based on comparison tests we believe that the broker used provides best execution under our direction, and we generally employ independently originated research rather than the research or other services that other brokers may provide.

We may receive services that are used for both research and other purposes, such as administration or marketing. We make a good faith effort to determine the relative proportions of such services that may be attributed to research only and to properly allocate the portion that should be paid through soft-dollar client commissions. The remainder, such as marketing and administrative expenses, is paid by Miller/Howard. An example might be a research seminar that discusses securities and investment techniques, which also offers information on marketing or promotional materials. We make our best efforts to properly allocate the portion that should be paid through soft-dollar client commissions. We regularly review these “mixed use” purchases to determine whether there has been a change and whether the allocation needs to be adjusted accordingly. We also conduct an annual review of all soft-dollar allocations.

When we use client brokerage commissions to obtain research or brokerage services, we receive a benefit to the extent that we do not have to produce such products internally or compensate third parties for the delivery of such services. Therefore, such use of client brokerage commissions results in a conflict of interest, because we have an incentive to direct client brokerage to those brokers who provide research and services we utilize, even if these brokers do not offer the best price or commission rates for our clients.

We typically place a substantial portion of brokerage commissions with broker-dealers that supply us with research services. This percentage figure may vary upward or downward from year to year. A substantial portion of our accounts are managed through broker-sponsored managed account or wrap account programs in which commissions are a part of a bundled fee.

In our capacity as a sub-adviser to mutual funds and other pooled investment vehicles (“funds”), we are authorized to use research services provided by, and to place portfolio transactions with, brokerage firms that have provided assistance in the distribution of shares of the fund or shares of other related funds to the extent permitted by law.

AGGREGATION AND ALLOCATION

When we determine that the purchase or sale of a particular security is in the best interests of more than one client, we may aggregate the trade in order to obtain superior execution or lower brokerage expenses. In particular, execution prices for identical securities purchased or sold on behalf of multiple accounts in any one business day may be averaged. In such events, allocation of the securities purchased or sold, as well as expenses incurred in the transaction, will be made among any participating accounts or clients by applying such considerations as we deem appropriate, including:

- relative account size of such entities and clients;
- amount of available capital and;
- size of existing positions in the same or similar securities.

Based on the impact of the factors listed above, we will not necessarily allocate trades on a prorata basis. No account will be entitled to investment priority over any other accounts and may not necessarily participate in every investment opportunity. We will endeavor to make all investment allocations in a manner we consider to be the most equitable to all clients.

As noted above in Item 6, Performance-Based Fees and Side-by-Side Management, Miller/Howard faces a conflict of interest to the extent that it manages an account for which it receives a performance-based fee at the same time as it manages one or more accounts for which it does not receive a performance-based fee or receives a different level of performance-based fee. Miller/Howard may have an incentive to favor accounts or take increased investment risk on behalf of accounts for which it receives a performance-based fee or a larger performance-based fee because it could receive greater compensation from such accounts. Miller/Howard has put into place policies and procedures to address these conflicts of interest, including policies designed to ensure allocation of trades and securities to client accounts on a fair and equitable basis.

Because certain clients direct all or a portion of their brokerage to a designated broker-dealer and we use the sponsoring broker in broker-sponsored managed account or wrap account programs, among other reasons, we will typically place the same trade at the same time with several different broker-dealers. In order to ensure that no client is advantaged over another, we employ a randomizer that randomly determines the order that the trades will be placed with the particular broker-dealers used for that trade. While this will generally randomly rotate trades where we have discretion over the broker used, it may not be as effective for those where we do not have broker discretion.

STEP-OUT TRADES

Our primary goal is to obtain best execution for clients, taking into account all of the factors relevant to a particular transaction, including additional fees for trading away for clients in programs where transaction fees are bundled. From time to time, we may decide that best execution can only be obtained by aggregating orders from many brokers with a single broker, who may not be the broker in which the client's funds are custodied. This may be necessary, for example, in the case of transactions in a very thinly traded stock, where many small orders from many brokers might be disruptive to the market pricing for that stock. Typically, the broker executing such a trade will do a "net" trade, which builds in a commission for that broker in the final price of the transaction. It is important for investors to note that such commissions for step-out trades are not included in the fees they may be paying to their custodian-broker for wrap or managed account programs, though such programs are typically offered as including all commissions.

We make every effort to conduct normal trading and transactions in single-fee-type accounts, but will not hesitate to use the above-described step-out technique if we believe the net result will be in the client's best interest.

EXECUTION RESTRAINTS

In certain situations such as wrap fee programs, we are strongly encouraged to trade through the program's sponsoring broker. In some of these situations, we can only create an order, whether that is a block order for many clients or for a single client, on the program's computer platform; thus, there is no practical option to trade through the broker of our choosing. In other situations, we update a model that is held and traded by the program sponsors, rather than actually trading ourselves. There are cases where we might theoretically step out a trade to get a particular execution, but the practicalities of distributing the stock to hundreds or thousands of accounts—a process that could take days and raises the possibility of human error for all parties—argue against most step-outs. Further, because in many cases we can only create an order on the sponsor's system, what might have been a single large order traded as a block is broken into smaller blocks, some of which may be trying to obtain execution at the same or similar times. These factors indicate that there may be externalities limiting our ability to obtain best execution or to use our discretion in determining where an order should or may be traded. In addition, these limitations may limit our ability to rotate orders randomly, as would be the case with individual clients. We do not guarantee random rotation in our trading for wrap programs, though we will always do our best to obtain fair and equally distributed executions for all clients.

Item 13 Review of Accounts

REVIEWS: Model portfolios are reviewed on a constant, ongoing basis. Each client account is reconciled monthly by support staff to confirm positions with trust bank statements.

REPORTS: In addition to the monthly statements on holdings and changes in market value sent monthly by the custodians, we send clients the portfolio manager's market outlook and portfolio strategy review each quarter, if requested.

Item 14 Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Miller/Howard may enter into written solicitation agreements to compensate persons independent of Miller/Howard for client referrals in compliance with Rule 206(4)-3 under the Advisers Act. If a referred client establishes an investment advisory relationship with Miller/Howard, the solicitor will typically receive a referral fee of a negotiated percentage of the investment advisory fees paid by the client for the duration of the investment advisory relationship. This referral fee will be paid out of the total advisory fees collected from clients. Miller/Howard will not charge an additional fee for advisory services to pay a solicitor. Generally, there is no difference in the advisory fee schedule for clients who have been solicited and those who have not been solicited as a result of these solicitation agreements. Clients that are referred by a solicitor will receive a copy of the solicitor's written disclosure document that describes the nature of the relationship between Miller/Howard and the solicitor, in addition to Miller/Howard's Form ADV Part 2.

Item 15 Custody

We previously disclosed in the “Fees and Compensation” section (Item 5) of this brochure that our firm directly debits advisory fees from client accounts through the custodian. Our firm will instruct the client’s custodian to deduct our management fees from the client’s account.

As part of this billing process, the client’s custodian is advised of the amount of the fee to be deducted from that client’s account. On at least a quarterly basis, the custodian is required to send to the client a statement showing all transactions within the account during the reporting period.

Because the custodian does not calculate the amount of the fee to be deducted, it is important for clients to carefully review their custodial statements to verify the accuracy of the calculation, among other things. Clients should contact us directly if they believe that there may be an error in their statement.

Our firm does not have custody of client accounts.

Item 16 Investment Discretion

We require that clients give us the discretionary authority to place trades in a client's account without contacting the client prior to each trade to obtain the client's permission.

Our discretionary authority includes the ability to buy or sell securities and execute the transaction without contacting the client.

Clients give us discretionary authority when they sign a discretionary power of attorney with our firm or with the sponsoring broker, and may limit this authority by giving us written instructions. Clients may also change/amend such limitations by once again providing us with written instructions.

Item 17 Voting Client Securities

We vote proxies for all client accounts unless instructed otherwise; however, you always have the right to vote proxies yourself. You can exercise this right by instructing us in writing to not vote proxies in your account.

We have engaged Broadridge Investor Communication Solutions to assist us with the analysis, voting, and record keeping of proxy ballots. Broadridge provides independent assessment and recommendations with regard to proxy items for securities held in clients' accounts. On occasion at the instruction of the client, we will use an alternate proxy service. Our process is the same regardless of service used.

We have adopted a written policy regarding the voting of client proxies that is designed to ensure that Miller/Howard fulfills its fiduciary obligation to our clients. The written policies are designed to address a wide range of common business and social issues often contained in proxy statements, and to vote them in the best interest of our clients. Items not specifically addressed in the policy will be dealt with on a case-by-case basis with guidance from Broadridge. If we have a conflict of interest, we will follow Broadridge's recommendation.

A copy of our proxy voting policy is available upon request. We will also provide, upon request, information regarding how we voted on a specific proxy item. All requests must identify the investment and the item(s) and be submitted to Miller/Howard in writing.

Unless specifically instructed to do so by the client, we will neither advise nor act on behalf of the client in legal proceedings involving companies whose securities are held in the client's account(s), including, but not limited to, the filing of "Proofs of Claim" in class action settlements. If desired, clients may direct us to transmit copies of class action notices to the client or a third party. Upon such direction, we will make commercially reasonable efforts to forward such notices in a timely manner.

With respect to ERISA accounts, we will vote proxies unless the plan documents specifically reserve the plan sponsor's right to vote proxies. To direct us to vote a proxy in a particular manner, clients should contact us by telephone, email, or in writing.

You can instruct us to vote proxies according to particular criteria (for example, to always vote with management, or to vote for or against a proposal to allow a so-called "poison pill" defense against a possible takeover). These requests must be made in writing. You can also instruct us on how to cast your vote in a particular proxy contest by contacting us.

All communications regarding proxy voting should be directed to:

Item 18 Financial Information

Under no circumstances do we require or solicit payment of fees in excess of $1,200 per client more than six months in advance of services rendered. Therefore, we are not required to include a financial statement.

As an advisory firm that maintains discretionary authority for client accounts, we are required to disclose any financial condition that is reasonably likely to impair our ability to meet our contractual obligations. Miller/Howard has no additional financial circumstances to report.
